Focus goes on exporting

Exporters and would-be exporters are being encouraged to sign up for a day focussing on exporting, coming up in June.

The day has grown from a Chamber of Commerce export cluster luncheon and discussion, to include morning and afternoon workshops on exporting, which are being run by the Aoraki Development Trust's Enterprise Training programme.

Chamber Chief Executive Wendy Smith says exporting our goods is critical to New Zealand's growth and an exciting area in which to be involved and already, interest in the export focussed day is high.

"The Chamber's export cluster luncheon will feature Peter Jack, who has for the past 26 years been exporting limited numbers of high quality handcrafted whips to around 32 countries," she says.

"He's going to tell us a little of his story and then the exporters attending will have a chance to network with like-minded business people."

The morning workshop "Developing an export strategy" covers the first steps to exporting, market research, cultural protocols, banking, foreign exchange and more.

The afternoon workshop "Getting your product to market" covers insurance, product liability, transportation and shipping, documentation, regulations, trademarking and IP protection, and more.

Contributing to the workshops are chamber president Steve Lyttle, of Honey Valley, chamber member and PrimePort chief executive Jeremy Boys and chamber board member Grant Gilbert of Aorangi Customs.

Get the disciplinary process right

Business owners, managers, supervisors and human resource professionals can all benefit from a training seminar coming up in June, on disciplinary processes.

The seminar is being presented by Timaru employment lawyer, Tony Shaw, and attending may help you avoid personal grievances and feel confident if you do have to take some disciplinary action with your staff.

The course will help you to understanding the legal requirements for procedural fairness and what disciplinary action is appropriate.

Topics include:

- When and how to take disciplinary action
- How to give a fair warning
- How to conduct a thorough and fair investigation
- Suspension
- Ensuring you follow a fair process

Tony Shaw

The course is being held Thursday June 18, from, 8.30am-12pm, at the Aoraki Development Trust conference room, cnr Stafford and Strathallan streets. Cost: Standard price, $100 + gst, Chamber members $50 + gst.
